DANIELSON

Reports Wednesday from St. Vincent's hospital, Worcester, were more encouraging relative to the condition of Rev. Joseph E. McCarthy, pastor of All Hallows' church at Moosup. While his condition remains critical, following a surgical operation performed last week, he has shown some slight improvement and the trend is in a hopeful direction. If the improvement continues as has been noted during the past few days, hospital authorities hope that his name may be removed from the dangerous list. Recent visitors at the hospital where Father McCarthy is a patient and for the express purpose of inquiring as to his condition have included Rt. Rev. John G. Murray, auxiliary bishop of Hartford, and Rev. William A. Keefe, of St. Mary's parish, Greenfield, formerly of Plainfield, Mother Joseph, of a Canadian convent, a sister of Father McCarthy and another of his sisters, Miss Mary McCarthy of Waterbury, are with Father McCarthy during his illness.

Louis Hargrave, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hargrave of Railroad street, remained in an unconscious condition at the home of her parents here during Wednesday. The child has not regained consciousness since she was injured Tuesday afternoon when, without being seen, she stepped upon the running board of an automobile that her father was backing out of a barn at their home on Railroad street and her head was caught and crushed between the side of the barn door and the side of the car. Dr. S. B. Overlock, head surgeon at the Day Kimball hospital advised against an operation. During Wednesday the condition of the child was regarded as very critical.

All kinds of fine Main apples for sale at reasonable prices. L. P. Morrison, 76 So. Main street, Danielson—adv.

A number of Danielson people who motored to Stafford to attend the fair on Wednesday found that the day's program of racing had been canceled on account of the stop condition of the track, following recent rains. Thousands came to the fair, however, and all entered the grounds, no admission being charged. The local men found much entertainment on the grounds, although disappointed over not seeing the horses race. Among those from this section who were at Stafford were J. Carl Witter, N. A. Witter, C. H. Michaels, A. V. Woodworth and A. E. Whittington.

The case of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mignault of Danville is to go to trial in the superior court in Putnam today (Thursday). The couple were arrested a few days ago at the same time three boys were taken into custody. The boys, two of whom have been ordered sent to the reform school, were charged with breaking and entering the Gay store at Attawapung and stealing goods. Disposition of the case of the older boy, Horridos, is still awaiting attention in the superior court and the younger boys are being held here in charge of a keeper. They likely will be used as witnesses in the superior court today. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mignault are to be presented on a charge arising from the affairs in which their sons have been implicated.

An effort to build up a section south of Danielson is seen in the activity going on in the Fall Brook section to clear away brush and make available a considerable area for building purposes. For a number of years Danielson's tendency has been to expand toward the north, while the southern section, which is well situated for building purposes and on a state highway and trolley line, has been entirely neglected.

There is a short detour on the state highway route to Hampton at a point where a bridge is being put in near the foot of Hampton hill. This is the important work being done on the new highway at this time, but fences are to be built along certain parts of the route, as is customary on most state highways in Connecticut.

Hunters report partridge, pheasant and quail as plentiful in this territory this fall. Gray squirrels also are being brought in in numbers. The increase in the number of game birds is attributed to the fact that the past winter was very mild and that the birds escaped being winter killed.

Following an election in which telephone operators in the Danielson, Putnam and divisions participated, Miss Shale Collins and Mrs. Abby Hopkins of the Danielson division were elected representatives of the district in an employees' organization that is co-operating with the company.

Thomas Killian, Roy Varior and A. Bernier, Jr., left Wednesday for Springfield, where they are to prepare themselves to do entomological work and eventually will be engaged in the effort to eradicate the gypsy moth and other such pests in this section of New England.

Aside from the fact that the banks were closed, there was no special observance of Columbus day in Danielson.

Rev. Alphonse Charlier, M. S., who has just completed a mission in the town of Somers, is visiting relatives in Danielson.

It is possible that jurors from this section who are engaged in the superior court will complete their duties this week, has about concluded disposition of cases that are to be considered this term.

Manufacturing concerns hereabouts are accumulating supplies of soft coal for the winter period.

Considerable more money changed hands here on Wednesday as the result of wagers on the outcome of the World's series game.

Miss Katharyn J. Coffey has been appointed administratrix of the estate of her brother, Francis W. Coffey, who was electrocuted at Somersworth, N. H., Sept. 21st.

The People's Library association which was organized in 1914 and which turned over most of its books to the Free Public Library a year ago, voted last week at the annual meeting to present the Free Public Library James Savage's Genealogical Dictionary of the first settlers of New England, in four volumes. This is to be placed in the reference room.

They also voted to expend about $200 for general books, most of these will be for children. The committee for purchase of books is Miss Amelia Hutchins and Mrs. W. I. Bullard.

The librarians state that they have many requests for genealogical research and the above books will be a great help

PUTNAM

The trial of Edward Melvern and Charles E. Drew, both colored, Providence, entered its third day in the superior court here Wednesday, when it finally reached the jury, following arguments made by counsel during the morning session. Melvern and Drew were accused of robbing the house of George Law of Thompson of $181 on May 22, of this year. They were arrested the same day at Webster and since have been held at Brooklyn jail awaiting trial. Both denied their guilt and told stories during lengthy examinations that were in their principal parts corroborative of each other. Trial of Melvern and Drew has been the feature, aside from the case of Rana Gray, of this section, with the superior court and their cases that have not been disposed of through pleas of guilty to original or amended charges.

State Attorney Charles E. Searls, his assistant, Attorney Howard C. Bradford, and Attorney Charles L. Torrey, public defender, and Joseph LeCount, of Providence, attorney for Drew, were the attorneys in the case, all having their part in arguments addressed to the jury during Wednesday's session.

The court room was well filled during to them as well as to visitors to the library.

Savage, James. Genealogical dictionary of the first settlers of New England, showing three generations of those who came before May, 1692, on the basis of Farmer's Register, Vol. 4, vol. 4, Boston, 1880-82.

"This book presents the outline of American genealogy and one that is nearly complete. We have herein the names of a great proportion of the settlers previous to 1692. Prior to this publication we had no guide as to the extent of existing information. When we wish to trace any given name, Mr. Savage's dictionary will be our first resource, and it will lead us to the correct authorities remaining to be appealed to (the New England Historical and Genealogical Register), after which all but most enthusiastic will rest assured that the family is of recent origin and will take other well known methods to trace it. One other prominent excellence of this work remains to be stated. As he has embraced all of New England in his plan of investigation, he has been able to collect a great number of the same name from its primal root here. A branch disappear and no clue points whither, but this book will probably show its locality if in New England and give information which otherwise would be absolutely unobtainable. We may conclude, then, that Mr. Savage has conferred upon every genealogist a boon which can be estimated when we state that no public library, perhaps no private one, possesses all the printed works from which he has gathered information; and an exploration of his manuscript authorities is a task for which few can afford the time or expense."

Refus Mowry, who has been working at Mechanicville, was before Judge M. H. Geisler in the city court Wednesday morning. Mowry answered to a charge of having been intoxicated and received a sentence of 30 days in jail. Evidence produced against him in court included a pint bottle containing some liquid that had a small gloriously reminiscent of pre-party-dry days. According to Mowry's story what was left in the bottle represented a purchase he had made for $3, after being invited by some acquaintances here to have a drink and complimenting them on the quality of what they gave him. Mowry had no knowledge of where the intoxicant was obtained, as he claimed not to have purchased it, nor of the identity of the congenial persons who invited him to drink of their expensive beverage.

Captain J. H. Bulger spent some of his time Wednesday on the trial of convicts—women—who were engaged in the city, endeavoring to sell books. The captain did not like the nature of some of the reports received by him relative to the book agents, so set out to interview them.

When executors of the estate of Norman B. Ream, who left several million dollars, file a report of their trust in the probate court at Thompson today (Thursday), proceedings will be no more than those formally required in filing an an-ing Wednesday, as has been the rule throughout the trial. The accused have persistently denied any responsibility for the robbery of the Law home, though admitting being in the vicinity on the day the crime was committed. Attorney Torrey impressed the jury with the fact on Wednesday during the course of his argument that the aggregate sum of money found on Drew and Melvern when they were arrested at Webster was materially less than the amount they are accused of having stolen at the Law home, and that between the time of the robbery and their arrest there was nothing in the testimony of the witnesses called to show how they expended the difference.

After being out an hour and forty minutes the jury returned with a verdict finding Melvern guilty of breaking and entering, and guilty of stealing $181. He was sentenced to serve from 2 to 4 years on the first count and from 1 to 3 years on the second count, the sentence to run concurrently. Drew was found guilty of receiving stolen goods to the value of $181 and was sentenced to serve 30 days in jail.

Putnam's evening school will open Monday evening next, at Putnam High school and will continue until spring. At least 75 sessions will be held and the hope is that large numbers of Putnam people will take advantage of the opportunity that the night school will open for them. As for several years past Lewis F. Battey will be principal of the school and will teach some of the classes. Mr. Battey, a graduate of Yale university, speaks both English and French and is an able instructor, who has accomplished great work through his work in the evening schools.

Principal Battey will have as his assistants Byron Wilcox and Miss Elsie Gallant, who will have charge of the commercial courses.

The evening school that the town of Putnam provides has been the means of furnishing a large number with the opportunity to complete grade school courses and others with their chance to get the rudiments of an education denied them in earlier years. The school knows no limitations so far as age or sex is concerned and offers its facilities to all who experience a desire to improve their knowledge. The hope has been expressed by school officials that large numbers will be present and register for the courses next Monday evening.

Refus Mowry, who has been working at Mechanicville, was before Judge M. H. Geisler in the city court Wednesday morning. Mowry answered to a charge of having been intoxicated and received a sentence of 30 days in jail. Evidence produced against him in court included a pint bottle containing some liquid that had a small gloriously reminiscent of pre-party-dry days. Mowry had no knowledge of where the intoxicant was obtained, as he claimed not to have purchased it, nor of the identity of the congenial persons who invited him to drink of their expensive beverage.

When executors of the estate of Norman B. Ream, who left several million dollars, file a report of their trust in the probate court at Thompson today (Thursday), proceedings will be no more than those formally required in filing an annual accounting. Attorney Charles E. Searls stated Wednesday.

Members of the history class of Putnam High school are to make a pilgrimage to Boston on Saturday as a feature of their historical studies dealing with American history and the early days of the republic and the period just preceding the declaration of independence. They will visit at Bunker Hill, Lexington, Concord and other historic spots, according to an announcement made on Wednesday relative to the journey they are to undertake, properly chaperoned.

Connecticut Company officials have specifically denied that there is any intent to curtail the present hourly service on the line through this city. The public, on their part, feel that the present service is truly adequate to meet all transportation needs of the kind met by the trolley company and there is no present intention of curtailing it.

Hebrews of this city observed the annual feast of Yom Kippur on Wednesday, this being the Day of Atonement. Sheriff Charles A. Gates of Williamantic was here on Wednesday to attend the session of the superior court.

Mrs. E. C. Rogers visited with relatives in Boston on Wednesday.

Produce that have occurred during the present week have killed many flowering plants and given a fall flavor to things in general, this situation being reflected in increased buying of fall goods shown in the shops of this city.

The Merchants' committee of the Chamber of Commerce continues to oppose programs advertising and kindred publicity of various sorts, in accordance with a policy that has the approval of the board.

Piles

Can't Be Cured From the Outside.

External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations. The cause is inside—bad circulation. The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., set at work some years ago to find a real internal Pile remedy. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It's easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood's, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

Approval of the business organizations. Miss Helen E. Ayward of Danielson is the guest of her cousin, Miss Katherine T. Thayer.

This week brings the opening of the season hunting; season and devotees of the sport have their plans all made for expeditions into the open hunting country hereabouts.

More than ordinary interest is being shown in the evening courses opened this week at the state trade school, which is offering unusual opportunities for those who would acquire skill in various lines of practical endeavor.

It has come to the attention of those who always are keenly interested in politics that Senator Archibald Macdonald, a former mayor of Putnam, is being solicited by many of his friends to again allow his name to be used in the republican caucus that will be called within a few weeks to nominate the party's candidate for the highest office in this city. Mayor A. W. Murrey, republican, is not a candidate for re-election.

There was a considerable delegation of Putnam people at Stafford on Wednesday to attend the fair.

Numbers of motoring parties who have been in this city this week have come here as an incident to touring through this section to view the foliage, now very beautiful in all of the surrounding territory.

A large number gathered in Union hall Wednesday evening for the Ladies' night entertainment arranged by Cargill council, K. of C. The committee that had charge of the arrangements was made of L. H. Charron, Willie Carroll, Thomas Howarth, Charles Mayhew and Napoleon Jette.
